SUMMARY OF LOCAL NEWS FOR THE YEAR JUST ENDED.

Review of Principal Events Of Interest In Newark

Gratifying Growth and Progress of This Thriving City

Development of Gas Field and the Interurban Roads

New Buildings--Telephone Plants Rebuilt--Number of Fire Alarms, Deaths and Marriages--Realty Transfers--Military Camp--Accidents-- General Summary of the News.

The year 1902 which has just come to a close has been a notable one in the history of this growing, thriving, beautiful city. In the past twelve months Newark's progress has been steady and gratifying, her growth encouraging and her development such that it is pointed to with pride by more than 20,000 people who call this town their home.

The great building boom which began several years ago, owing to the location of new factories and the enlargement of others resulted in the erection of over 500 houses in this city in the year 1901. While lumbermen and contractors say that the number of new houses was less than that number in 1902, they point out the fact that some of the most magnificent homes in Newark were built in the year which has just come to an end. Builders say that a number of fine residences will be built this year in the North end of the city and in other sections of the city as well. The past year has seen the beginning of the biggest block ever erected in the city--the big flat building which is well under way at the corner of Church and Fourth streets, fronting 200 feet on Church street.

The past year has seen the Newark and Granville interurban line rebuilt and the Columbus, Buckeye Lake and Newark interurban completed and put in successful operation, surveys have been made and material ordered to build a line from this city to Zanesville and there is a prospect for a line between Newark and Mt. Vernon. The city electric line which is in new hands will in the spring be extended to better care for the people who ride. A noteworthy improvement in the city service is the introduction of new and larger cars and within a few weeks a better service between Newark and Granville will be given.

Idlewild park, the prettiest park in Ohio did a good business in 1902 and promises well for 1903 under the new manager, Mr. W. D. Harris.

Buckeye Lake park which opened in the spring will be made more beautiful this season and Col. Wells is arranging for many new and up to date features. Electric cars for the first time last summer carried passengers from Newark to Buckeye Lake.

The past year has seen the reconstruction of the Central Union Telephone plant and the rebuilding of the Independent Telephone plant which is now almost complete at a cost of $50,000.

Within the year a fifth bank, the Licking, was added to Newark's financial institutions.

During the year 1902, there have been 1828 transfers of real estate recorded in the office of Recorder J. W. Rutledge.

Probate Judge Taylor and his efficient and accommodating deputies, Carl Martin and F. E. Slabaugh, have been busy during the year and issued 483 marriage licenses, appointed 40 administrators, 36 executors, 19 administrators with will annexed, 31 guardians and probated 46 wills.

The first death in Newark in 1902 was that of Alfred Wintermute, and during the year there were 331 deaths within the city limits, an average of less than one per day.

In the past year Newark entertained the State Lodge of Elks, an immense Labor Day crowd from Central Ohio cities and the Ohio National Guard in camp. The year of 1903 will see the entire National Guard of Ohio here in one big camp and it is altogether probable that President Roosevelt will visit Newark. 1902 The Old and the New Year

Neath a coverlet of snow
Nature drear and stiff is lying,
While the consummated year
On an icy couch is dying.

Over all her prostrate form
Chilling, freezing winds are blowing;
Underneath increasing ice
Sluggish tides of life are flowing.

Summer, spring and fall have vanished,
Friends and fortune all have fled,
And the solemn bell at midnight
Dismal tolls, "The year is dead!"

Hark! A cry, as infant wailing,
Comes from bells that wildly ring.
Hark! A shout, as nations hailing,
Full of hope, their new crowned king.

WILL LAWLER

MAYAGUEZ'S HANDSOME CUSTOM HOUSE.

The Porto Ricans, whatever else they may be, cannot justly be accused of an excess of modesty. They never hide their light under a bushel, and this characteristic applies as well to municipalities as to individuals. It is therefore not to be wondered at that the city of Mayaguez, Porto Rico, boldly asserts that she has the finest custom house of any city of its size in the world. This might be charitably regarded as a sort of "poetic flight of fancy," but there is no denying that the building into which the customs dues for the port of Mayaguez are paid is really a handsome structure. What is more, it is, unlike most public structures erected by the Spaniards, particularly well adapted to the purpose for which it was intended.

See, he comes, the youthful monarch,
Health and promise in his form!
Heeds he not the shouts of welcome,
Heeds he not the howling storm.

Underneath his feet are springing
Grass and grain and fruits and flowers;
In his train are servants bringing
Choirs of birds and summer showers.

On his brow is firmly sitting
Hope's eternal golden crown,
And above him angels, flitting,
Pour celestial music down—

Music thrilling all the nations,
Singing to all hearts of peace,
Nerving all to fill their stations,
Trusting that old wrongs shall cease.

Give Time's youthful monarch welcome!
Hail his coming with a cheer
Full and free and long and loving;
Welcome to the newborn year!

A TOWN BUILT BY ROYAL DECREE.

The illustration gives a birdseye view of Dalny, Manchuria, a city which was built by the decree of the Russian czar. This order was issued less than a year ago, when the czar had become convinced that there should be a city on the spot on which Dalny now stands, which was then a barren waste. Work was pushed forward so rapidly that a couple of weeks ago the place was sold in parcels to Russian subjects and is today a thriving community with "all the modern conveniences." This might have been quite an undertaking for an ordinary individual, but for the czar of all the Russias it was a mere bagatelle.

THE NEWEST FLYING MACHINE AND ITS INVENTOR.

Emilien Marecau, a French Canadian, has finally solved the problem of aerial navigation. This may sound like a radical statement, but as Mr. Marecau himself admits the soft impeachment there can be no doubt of its accuracy. His machine is made after the old familiar bird model, and if it should work will be a really creditable achievement, inasmuch as it derives, or will derive, its buoyancy from itself and not from a gas bag, as is the case with the mis-called "airships" of Santos-Dumont and his many rivals.

WORLD'S SMALLEST COLLIERY.

The distinction of being the smallest colliery in the world belongs to the one pictured herewith. It is known as the Wern Colliery and is located in Llancafach, Nelson, Glamorganshire, Wales, and about fourteen miles from Cardiff. This mine is owned by Lewis

Thomas and is worked by that gentleman, his wife, their son and a donkey. The output is about four tons a day. Mr. Thomas has managed to lay by a snug little nest egg from the earnings of his diminutive colliery.

THE IMMIGRANTS' FIRST HOME.

The illustration shows the immigration station on Ellis Island, New York harbor, in which annually hundreds of thousands of immigrants pass their first night in the United States. The structure is substantial rather than showy and is a great improvement on old Castle Garden, with its clumsy system and numberless abuses. This is the second Ellis Island station. The first was burned several years ago.

NEWLY DISCOVERED CAVE IN THE ROCK OF GIBRALTAR.

It was generally supposed that there were no portions of the rock of Gibraltar with which the British were not thoroughly familiar. The place had been gone over from top to base perhaps more than a thousand times in the fear that it might contain some old Spanish mines which would prove dangerous in case of trouble with Spain. All of these examinations seemed to demonstrate conclusively that the place was literally "as solid as a rock," and yet during some recent blasting operations there was laid bare the large cave shown in the accompanying illustration.

Some Interesting Pictures of Life In Venezuela

THE YELLOW HOUSE IN CARACAS.

President Cipriano Castro's official residence, the White House of Venezuela, is yellow and is called the Yellow House. It stands on a hill in the city of Caracas and is one of the show places of President Castro's capital. Although but a scant six miles from the coast, the Yellow House is 219 feet above the sea. Caracas has a population of about 70,000 and was founded in 1567. In 1812 the city was destroyed by an earthquake. Owing to the intervening mountains, the Yellow House is not easy of capture, for they are very steep and extremely difficult for an invading army to ascend.

STREET SCENE IN LA GUAYRA.

La Guayra, which the allied German and British fleets first attacked, is the seaport of Caracas and is connected with the capital by rail. The distance between the two cities is between five and six miles by air line, but by rail about twenty miles. The streets of La Guayra are very narrow and are poorly paved. Many of them are mere lanes between rows of badly built houses and are far from being attractive.

THE PERIERO OF CARACAS.

If Venezuela is short of cash, she is long on dogs, and in Caracas the great cathedral has a strange individual called a periero, or dog boy, whose duty it is to stand at the cathedral door with a long whip and keep out the dogs.

AN ORINO BOAT.

Venezuela is said to have more than a thousand rivers, the largest of which is the Orino, which is nearly a thousand miles long and is the largest river in South America. It is known as the Orino because of the large number of crocodiles which are found in its waters. The Orino is a very important river for the people of Venezuela, and it is one of the most beautiful rivers in the world.

A LARGE BUILDING IN CARACAS.

COLD FEET

Blood Wine Keeps the Body Warm

When Winter comes you can always tell the man with thin, watery blood. He goes around all bent over, his head drawn down in his collar, his nose red, face blue, teeth chattering, and his feet and hands like caks of ice. With a little attention paid to his blood his Winters would be a pleasure. It's the blood that keeps us warm, that produces the natural heat. "Blood Wine" will cure a person of the "shivers" no matter how long he has suffered with the cold. It will keep the hands and feet warm instead of "clammy," because it enriches and improves the blood and circulation. People who are indoors a great deal, as in the case of Prof. J. H. Newton, Lowell, Mass., suffer more or less with the cold. To these people we suggest following Prof. Newton's advice:

"I consider 'Blood Wine' the finest blood medicine to rejuvenate a worn-out and run-down system I ever saw. It improves the condition of the blood so that one doesn't notice the cold. Since taking 'Blood Wine' I have never been troubled with cold feet or hands, and have not minded the most severe Winter weather." Get a bottle of "Blood Wine" for fifty cents and try it for this trouble.
